

Scott McCleery is a Registered Psychotherapist recognized by the College of Registered Psychotherapists of Ontario (CRPO). He earned a Master's degree in Counselling and Spirituality from Saint Paul University and a Bachelor of Arts in Philosophy and Religion from Carleton University. Scott is also a Canadian Certified Counsellor with advanced training in Self-in-Relationship Psychotherapy.

Currently, Scott serves as Assistant Director at the Kanata Psychology and Counselling Centre. He is an instructor for the Institute for Self-in-Relationship Psychotherapy, where he completed the Advanced Self-in-Relationship Psychotherapy Training. His responsibilities include clinical education, supervision, and supporting the professional development of practitioners.

Scott's clinical work focuses on adult individuals and couples using a relational and experientially oriented approach. With over five years of experience, he provides clinical supervision to Registered Psychotherapists (Qualifying) and supervises Master's-level students from Yorkville University and the University of Ottawa.